Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 15 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Fine for most but continuing night frosts.

This Evening and Tonight:
Scattered showers in the southeast and south of England soon dying out. Clear periods for many with widespread frost, quite sharp in places, and a few fog patches developing. The far northwest breezier, cloudier and less cold.

Friday:
Dry with sunny spells and light winds helping temperatures recover quite well, so feeling pleasant enough by afternoon. Windy in far northwest, a little rain possible across the Outer Hebrides.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Fine and dry for much of England and Wales with overnight frost and a few early fog patches. Scotland and Northern Ireland cloudier with rain at times. Mild nights here.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.